Simple, Smart, & Sold

Home Improvements that can help you sell your home should be fairly simple, smart, and affordable. Most buyers look for move-in-ready, or at least minimal improvements with lower cost values. Remodeled kitchens and baths can go a long way, but here we are talking mostly about the cosmetic improvements that show your home in its best light when trying to sell, to help you get top dollar for your home.

START HERE

1. Clean your home inside and out
2. Replace or paint your front door
3. Clean up your landscaping, apply new bark, and add color
4. Power wash your exterior and clean gutters
5. Finish all little projects around the house, like tightening cabinet hinges.
6. Test and replace any sprinklers that are not functional.
7. Declutter the garage and yard, as well as inside.

NOW LET'S MOVE ON TO THE GOOD STUFF...

You will find a few quick, simple improvement ideas that may cost a little but get a big bang for the buck. Check out our FREE eBook on Staging Your Home to Sell for great ideas on decluttering.

6 Simple Improvements

#1 Declutter Every Room

There is a difference between clutter and just plain messy. So, assuming you cleaned up any messes in each room of your home, now step back and look at the problem areas where clutter can accumulate.

- ✓ Kitchen
- ✓ Bathrooms
- ✓ Bedrooms
- ✓ Entry Way
- ✓ Laundry Room
- ✓ Garage
- ✓ Closets
- ✓ Countertops
- ✓ Curio cabinets
- ✓ Wall décor and shelving
- ✓ Bookshelves
- ✓ Collections

Decluttering is important because you want to make your home to show to potential buyers that it is roomy, has plenty of storage, and there's a place for everything.

Think minimal. Use pops of color. Keep it clean and tidy.

#3 Style Kitchen and Bathrooms

The two rooms potential buyers will remember are the kitchen and bathrooms when they view homes. You want yours to be remembered for the right reasons and stand out from the rest. Give these rooms a little extra humph even if remodeling isn't in the budget.

In the kitchen, you might consider a new backsplash, updated faucets, and contemporary light fixtures. Once you have it looking in the best light, get into the details. When a kitchen is decluttered, it should give the buyer a sense of a spacious prep space for the home cook. Add a few pops of color like a fruit bowl, fresh cut flowers, a colorful teapot on the burner, and a couple of modern touches that make it look functional, but clean. Buy new kitchen towels, or replace your paper towel holder. There are a lot of ways to make it look like a great space to cook meals, that are inexpensive and quick.

The bathrooms need the same TLC as the kitchen. Replace guest towels, candles, anything that looks tired, dirty or outdated. Consider modern fixtures in this room as well. Remember, any updating that you do, limits the amount of work a new homeowner will have to tackle.

A bathroom should be an oasis, creating a spa-like feeling that a new homeowner will remember.

#4 Update Window Treatments

Heavy, layered draperies, and swags make a room seem dark, old and tired. Remove them! If you have any torn window shades, or bent mini-blinds replace them as well. Light sheers that just frame the window not only let in the light, but will give a more spacious feeling for the potential buyers. If the location of the window demands more privacy, then add new shades.

Window coverings are an area where you can let your personal palette come alive. Play with color to brighten the room, or go neutral with texture and design to give the room more dimension and that decorator touch. Window coverings that go from the ceiling to the floor can give an allusion of a taller ceiling height. Also you can make the window seem wider by adding width to the rod and adding complementary drapes.

Make sure to put that extra care into the windows in the kitchen and bathrooms as well. It's all in the details! This simple, weekend fix will brighten every room in your home, and give it a cleaner, fresher look.

Although you have a neutral palette in your paint, trim and décor, give the room pops of color with pillows, drapes, and furniture that you can take with you when you sell.

#5 Install Closet Systems

Another simple home improvement that doesn't cost thousands of dollars and can make your home more desirable to buyers are organized closet systems. What buyer doesn't dream of well organized closets, from the master to the guest rooms?

The big box home improvement stores all have affordable DIY closet organization solutions that are modular and you can do in a day. If you want to have systems installed, that is up to you, but this is a place where you can make a huge impact without a lot of money out of pocket.

Closets big or small should look organized and functional. Refill your closets with just enough of your stuff so the closet looks used but not cluttered. Store the rest for your move! Plus you will have some of your packing done too!

Create dream closets your buyers will love!

#6 Showcase Your Flooring

It's not always possible to replace flooring whether it's carpeting or hardwood. Make the best out of your budget and what you have. If you have the budget for engineered hardwood flooring, you will add value to your home, while making it more sellable. Flooring can be a big cost, but it can also turn buyers off in a split second. All they will see is dollar signs in their eyes.

If you have worn or dirty carpeting, get it cleaned or replace it. Don't hide stains with area rugs. If you have hardwood that could use a good sprucing up, then clean it good and touch up any damaged areas.

This is one home improvement that you may be able to recoup a high percentage of your investment as it can add value to your home. Talk to your Keller Williams Agent, and they should be able to advise you before you spend the money.

Flooring should be cohesive throughout. Hardwood or engineered wood is the most popular in the shared spaces, but carpeting in the bedrooms is still favored.

What is a Smart Home?

Smart Home Technology is on the Rise

How can Smart Home Technology help you sell your home? Of course, millennials and Gen Ys are the largest groups wanting a home with technology that keeps them secure and connected, but they aren't the only ones. Even Baby Boomers are looking for more convenience in their lives.

Connecting devices to your smart phone can save energy, money, and time. There are four categories of smart devices:

1. Utilities - Thermostat, light bulbs, sprinkler, electrical outlet, ceiling fan, stove, washer and dryer, powered window shades, etc.
2. Safety - Wireless key entry, doorbell, garage door, outdoor lighting, etc.
3. Security - Burglar alarm, smoke alarm, carbon monoxide detector, or any sensor that triggers a call for emergency assistance.
4. Audio / Visual - Personal assistant such as Alexa or Siri, TVs, music, etc.

With today's technology available to consumers, it can be pretty easy to get started. Setting your home up with Smart Home devices can be a great marketing tool, and make your home stand out, without too much out of pocket.

What do I Need?

You Will Need:

In order to market your home as a Smart Home when you list it for sale, you are required to have a minimum of 3 devices connected, WIFI, and the ability to control it away from the home. You should be able to do this under $500 to meet the minimum requirement. One device MUST be a thermostat or security system. The other two devices can be anything else you choose.

A Smart Thermostat such as the Nest™ brand as pictured here will cost around $225. A WIFI Doorbell is about $60, smart outlets $20, garage door opener starts at $80, and so on.

SMART HOME TECH SETS YOUR HOME APART

- 80M smart home devices were delivered in 2016
- 45% of Americans expect to own or invest in smart home devices
- 54% of sellers are willing to invest if it will help sell their home
- 91% of users recommend it to others
